

The College of Arts and Science invites applications from qualified individuals for a full-time two-year limited term faculty position in Mathematics at the rank of Lecturer.

The successful candidate will be expected to teach the equivalent of 21 cu per year (equivalent to 7 courses) with an emphasis on foundational and service-oriented first-, second- and third-year undergraduate courses in Mathematics. While the primary focus of these positions is on teaching, Lecturers are also expected to contribute to the broader goals and activities of the Department, including administrative service and program and course development.

The Department offers undergraduate courses towards degrees in Applied Mathematics, Mathematics, Mathematical Physics, and Statistics, as well as several service-oriented courses for students in the Life Sciences and Engineering. Department members are also engaged in research, interdisciplinary and international collaborations, curriculum improvement and development, community outreach and promotion of the Mathematical Sciences.

We encourage applications from members of equity groups (e.g., women, members of a racialized minority, Indigenous persons, and persons with disabilities). The Department of Mathematics and Statistics supports excellence and recognizes that principles of equity, diversity, and inclusion are fundamental to this goal. Recruitment will be guided by the strong commitment of the University of Saskatchewan, the College of Arts and Science, and the Department of Mathematics and Statistics to diversity, inclusion, and equity.

The College of Arts & Science offers a dynamic combination of programs in the humanities, fine arts, social sciences and natural sciences. There are approximately 9,000 undergraduate and graduate students enrolled in the College, and 296 faculty members, including 10 Canada Research Chairs. The College emphasizes student and faculty research, interdisciplinary programs, community outreach and international opportunities.
