The 3rd International Workshop on Mathematical E-Learning (E-MATH 2011) aims at being an international event which serves as a meeting point for online instructors and researchers in the field of mathematical e-learning both at undergraduate and graduate levels.

The E-MATH 2011 is co-organized by the eLearn Center of the Open University of Catalonia (Barcelona, Spain), the Universidad Nacional de Educación a Distancia (Madrid, Spain) and the Universidade Aberta (Lisbon, Portugal).

Topics of interest include, but are not limited to:

Mathematical e-learning
 Computer Supported Mathematical Learning
 Groupware systems in Mathematical teaching
 Collaborative learning in Mathematical education
 Distributed e-learning environments for Mathematics
 Web-based Mathematical instruction/learning
 Evaluation of technology systems for Math e-learning
 Free and open source software for Math learning
 Simulation-supported learning and instruction in Mathematics
 E-learning management systems and Mathematical education
 Emerging technologies in Mathematical education
 Technology-driven Math e-learning models and strategies
 Multimedia and interactive Math e-learning systems
 Technological standardization in Mathematical learning
 Practices in Mathematical learning and teaching
 Surveys of Math e-learning adoption and results in education
 Future of Math e-learning

Important Dates:

February 28, 2011 - Deadline for Abstract Submission.

March 15, 2011 - Notification of acceptance.

May 15, 2011 - Deadline for early registration and authors registration.

June 21-23, 2011 - e-Math Workshop.

Abstract Submission

Authors are invited to submit an extended abstract of 2 to 4 pages (PDF format) to the Workshop Co-Chairs (see below).

Workshop Co-Chairs
